GStreamer Conference 2011

October 24 - 25, 2011, Prague, Czech Republic

The GStreamer Conference is an annual conference covering topics related to the GStreamer media framework and related open source multimedia technologies. It is the premier conference to learn about latest advances in open source multimedia for the linux desktop, server and embedded world.

This is the second year of the conference, with the first year being a great success with over 250 attendees, with even more people expected this year. Co-hosted alongside the Kernel Sumit, LinuxCon Europe, and Embedded Linux Conference Europe, this is a premier chance to advertise your company to decision makers and engineers working on linux based multimedia devices and applications.
